

Steven H. Lipstein
President and Chief Executive Officer
BJC HealthCare

As president and chief executive officer of BJC HealthCare, Steven H. Lipstein oversees one of the nation's largest health care organizations, with annual net revenues of $3.6 billion and nearly 28,000 employees in the greater St. Louis, southern Illinois and mid-Missouri regions.

BJC HealthCare serves patients and their families in urban, suburban and rural communities through its 13 hospitals and other health-service organizations.

Its teaching hospitals, Barnes-Jewish Hospital and St. Louis Children's Hospital, are affiliated with internationally renowned Washington University School of Medicine, consistently ranked among the nation's best medical schools and research institutions.

Mr. Lipstein serves on the St. Louis Regional Health Commission; he sits on the board of the Missouri Hospital Association, and is co-chair of the state-chartered MoHealthNet Oversight Committee, the successor program to Medicaid in Missouri.

At Washington University in St. Louis, Mr. Lipstein serves on the board of trustees, on the School of Medicine National Council, and is chair of the Institute of Public Health National Advisory Council.

Mr. Lipstein is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank and serves on the Board of Directors of Ameren, an electrical utility company with assets of $24 billion. In 2010, he was appointed by the United States Comptroller General as Vice Chair of the Board of the Patient Centered Outcomes Research Institute (PCORI), established under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Spanning three decades, Mr. Lipstein's education and professional career has taken him from Emory University to Duke University for college and graduate school respectively, to Massachusetts General Hospital, Johns Hopkins Hospital, the University of Chicago Hospitals, and now to BJC HealthCare, where he has served as president and chief executive officer since 1999.

Mr. Lipstein is married and has three children. He is a native of Wilmington, Delaware.